There were perhaps 1,000 little ones in the procession that filed into the church from their school across the street. They marched up to the altar in charge of the Sisters of Charity and knelt at the rail. The priest, holding two lighted candles in one hand, blessed the little ones, holding the lighted candles in front of their throats. After the ceremony the children marched back to school, Practically the same programme was followed in all the churches where where also send you free an illustrated also send you free an illustrated booklet.
